CPSC, KMC USA Inc. Announce Recall of Flammable Spray String

WASHINGTON, D.C. - In cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), KMC USA Inc., of Franklin Park, Ill., is recalling more than 190,000 cans of Party Time "Happy String." The product is hazardous if sprayed near an open flame due to the flammability of the propellant. Because it is a flammable product intended for use by children, it is a banned hazardous substance. Use of the spray string around flame sources, such as candles, could result in serious burns.

CPSC is aware of two reports of burns resulting from the use of this spray string. A 4-year-old boy that was burned when some of the string ignited while he was blowing out candles on his birthday cake. He suffered first- and second-degree burns on his face and arm. A woman sustained burns on her ear in another incident.

Party Time Happy String comes in round metal spray containers about 5-inches high. The cans are mostly white, with various color plastic caps, and contain 1.75 ounces of liquid chemical. "PARTY TIME" is written on the can in different colored block letters, and "Happy String" is depicted as if it is being sprayed from a can of the spray string. Additional writing on the cans include, "MADE IN KOREA" . . . "IDEAL FOR DECORATING WALLS, TABLES, TREES, PEOPLE, ANYTHING..."

"Dollar Tree," "Dollar Bills" and "Only $1" stores nationwide sold the spray string between October 1998 and January 1999 for about $1.

Consumers should take this spray string away from children and stop using it immediately. It can be returned to any Dollar Tree store for a refund. For more information, call Dollar Tree Stores at (800) 876-8077 anytime.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS:

A four year old boy suffered second degree burns to his face and left hand when "Happy String", a flammable product, was sprayed across burning candles at the victim's birthday party. The string ignited and stuck to the victim's face and hand. He was treated at the hospital and released.

PRE-INCIDENT:

The victim is a healthy, average-size four-year-old and is not incapacitated in any way. At the time of the incident, the victim was celebrating his fourth birthday, which was due to occur the following day. He was blowing out candles on his birthday cake. While he was blowing out the candles, the other children attending the party were spraying an aerosol product called "Happy String."

INCIDENT:

The child's father reported to the hospital that, "the string ignited in a cloud of blue flame." Some of the string stuck to the child's face and continued to burn for seconds.

POST-INCIDENT:

The victim's father quickly extinguished the flames and showered the victim in cold water before taking him to the emergency room. The victim was treated and released the same day.

According to the lawyer for the victim, the child's burns have healed, however, he lost pigmentation in the skin. At the time of this investigation, the lawyer had not been contacted by the plastic surgeon as to whether or not the victim would have plastic surgery.

PRODUCT INFORMATION:

> Since this investigation was conducted by telephone with the lawyer, I did not see the can of spray. However, labeling on the product was typed and provided to me. Frank,
We received a box of silly string by Federal Express. Enclosed was a letter from Hofhrimrt Nusbaum, PC in Norfolk VA. You are mentioned in the letter as being the cause of the samples. I expect you want a flame extension test done on these. Please confirm that that is the proper evaluation.

The samples are logged into IFS as 99-490-1154.

FOR RELEASE: MONDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1992
RELEASE #93-028

E. DAVIS TO PAY $225,000 TO SETTLE CIVIL PENALTY CASE INVOLVING FLAMMABLE AEROSOL STRING IN A CAN

WASHINGTON, DC -- The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) accepted a settlement agreement in which E. Davis, Inc. will pay $225,000 to resolve allegations that the firm failed to report in a timely manner a defect in its "Extra Thick Super String," as required under the Consumer Product Safety Act. The allegedly defective string was manufactured in 1988 and 1989. E. Davis is an importer located in Piscataway, New Jersey.

E. Davis recalled all affected cans of "Super String" in the winter of 1990. The company reformulated the product in the fall of 1989 and it is no longer flammable.

The CPSC staff alleged that the company knew that its party favor, aerosol string streamer in a can produced and sold in 1988 and 1989, contained a flammable propellant. Staff further alleged that the use of Super String by children, and in the presence of children and others at birthday parties and other celebrations where candles were in use, was reasonably foreseeable and extremely dangerous.

The CPSC staff believes that E. Davis had information which reasonably supported the conclusion that its 1988-1989 version of Super String contained a defect which could create a substantial product hazard. The staff also alleges that the firm failed to report that information to the Commission as required by section 15(b) of the Consumer Product Safety Act.

In signing the agreement, E. Davis denies the staff allegations that it violated the statutory reporting requirements. Even with regard to product produced in 1988-1989, E. Davis alleged that the warning on the product was sufficient; and that any use of the product near a flame would have constituted product misuse.

CPSC is issuing this news release as part of its mission to protect the public from unreasonable risks of injury and death associated with consumer products. The Commission's objective is to reduce the estimated 28.5 million injuries and 21,600 deaths associated each year with the 15,000 different types of consumer products under CPSC's jurisdiction. Timely reporting helps meet that objective.

######

NOTE: To report an unsafe consumer product or a product-related injury, consumers may call the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's toll-free hotline at 1-800-638-2772. A teletypewriter for the hearing impaired is available at 1-800-638-8270; the Maryland TTY number is 1-800-492-8104.
