Dear Commissioner Moore,

Our children should no longer be used as guinea pigs when it comes to the safety of toys. Which is why I'm asking you to vote YES on the rule requiring third-party, independent safety testing of toys before they make their way to our children.

Third-party testing is a common-sense, effective way to prevent unnecessary harm to our kids. Countless toys are now imported from overseas manufacturers that don't have the same safety requirements as we do here in the United States, making independent safety testing vital to keeping unsafe imports off store shelves.

Independent safety certification also will prevent costly and disruptive recalls that can damage our vulnerable economy. And most important, testing will catch hidden problems such as lead and other dangers that even the most vigilant parents cannot catch.

Please vote for and implement the third-party testing rule, and put in place the common-sense measures that will keep our children safe from hidden dangers in their toys.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Herold

To the Commissioners,

As a parent I urge you to vote yes. Lead poisoning from toys is an invisible threat that endangers our kids chances of learning and succeeding. I was recently horrified to realize that one of the painted toys that my son put in his mouth all the time was from China, and I just got a home test to find out if it has been poisoning my son or not. We can't let toys poison our kids. Please vote yes for my son and any of the children in your life.

Dear CPSC Commissioners,

I sincerely ask for your support and vote YES at next week's meeting regarding independent, third party lab testing of children's products to assure they meet safety standards prior to their sale in the USA. This type of testing would include packaging, labeling, and instructions, which would have likely saved my dear friends daughters life and many other children. Dear Commissioner Adler,

I am writing to ask you to please vote for independent testing of children's products. As a mother of a 13 month old, I receive your agency's recall emails (and have since I found out I was pregnant). Its crazy how many products are recalled each week and I wonder how many more might be on the cusp of safety. Navigating the labyrinth of consumer products is overwhelming and believe it or not, we really do look to your agency to protect us, which I believe always means erring on the side of safety. This isn't about someone using a product totally inappropriately, it's about basic safety and managing company's that don't follow or understand the safety rules.

Please help us protect our children!

Thank you,

Pamela von Eiff

Please vote Yes on Oct 19 to require independent lab testing of Products for children. My granddaughter very well might have been alive today had better oversight of labeling and warnings not to mention actual performance testing been in place. So that fewer grandparents have to experience such tragedy, we must do all that is possible to safeguard their children's children.

Commissioner Thomas Moore

Bethesda, MD 20814

Dear Commissioner Moore,

Our children should no longer be used as guinea pigs when it comes to the safety of toys. Which is why I'm asking you to vote YES on the rule requiring third-party, independent safety testing of children's products before they make their way to our children.

Third-party testing is a common-sense, effective way to prevent unnecessary harm to our kids. Countless products are now imported from overseas manufacturers that don't have the same safety requirements as we do here in the United States, making independent safety testing vital to keeping unsafe imports off store shelves.

Independent safety testing and certification also will prevent costly and disruptive recalls that can damage our vulnerable economy. And most important, testing will catch hidden problems such as lead and other dangers that even the most vigilant parents cannot catch.

Please vote for and implement the third-party testing rule, and put in place the common-sense measures that will keep our children safe from hidden dangers in their toys.

Sincerely,

Ms. lori weber

Dear Commissioner Moore,

I am writing to ask you to please vote for independent testing of children's products. As a mother of a 13 month old, I receive your agency's recall emails (and have since I found out I was pregnant). Its crazy how many products are recalled each week and I wonder how many more might be on the cusp of safety. Navigating the labyrinth of consumer products is overwhelming and believe it or not, we really do look to your agency to protect us, which I believe always means erring on the side of safety. This isn't about someone using a product totally inappropriately, it's about basic safety and managing company's that don't follow or understand the safety rules.

Please help us protect our children!

Thank you,

Pamela von Eiff

Dear CPSC Commissioners,

I sincerely ask for your support and vote YES at next week's meeting regarding independent, third party lab testing of children's products to assure they meet safety standards prior to their sale in the USA. This type of testing would include packaging, labeling, and instructions, which would have likely saved my dear friends daughters life and many other children. I am a mother of two children and if it were in your shoes it would be an easy vote of YES. This is the only way to prevent dangerous products hurting our children.

Thank you for all that you do to protect our children.
