Meeting Summary

The group discussed label conspicuity and where on unit is an appropriate place for the label. Several manufacturers are concerned with small drawer units not having enough space on the drawer side to fit the label. Also discussed the use of pictures in instructions manuals to show users where the label is on the unit. The group also discussed an additional small label which points the consumer to the warning label located somewhere else on the unit. The group is still working on language for a proposed ballot concerning conspicuity of the label and an acceptable solution for multiple product configurations.
