This is a task group meeting of UL STP 30, which is tasked with developing the language for the new joint standard incorporating UL 30, UL 1313, and ULC ORD-30 together, which all cover flammable liquid containers. This meeting was a continuation of previous meetings in January, February, and March.

This meeting first focused on a proposed flame arrestor test based somewhat on UL 525. The group discussed aspects of a flame arrestor test, but made no final determinations. Based on the discussion, a revised proposal will be developed for future consideration. The group will continue to work on developing a requirement for flame arrestors.

The group next reviewed proposed changes to other sections of the draft standard.

The next meeting will be decided by a doodle poll, and is expected for some time in next two to three weeks.
