I am writing to make your agency aware of a huge problem. See, I was out walking my dog on the sidewalk tonight. Cute dog, by the way. Thirteen pounds. Very lovable. Well as I was walking the dog I tripped and almost fell. I am pretty sure my shoe caught in a crack in the sidewalk, although it may have been a loose stick from the ol' oak in the front yard which was laying on the sidewalk. In any event, I thought this might be a problem right down your alley. Maybe when you are done banning all the gas stoves in the world and when you are done laying waste to that pernicious gas stove cartel, or maybe its a junta, you could look into this problem. It seems to me if you truly are out to protect us citizenfolk you really ought to consider banning cracks in sidewalks or maybe all sidewalks or, if the real problem is sticks falling out of trees onto sidewalks, it might just be better to ban all trees. I just know in my heart that I am unable to watch where I am going and make my own decisions about where I walk and just simply take responsibility for my actions and thus need the protection that only the virtuous and benevolent federal government can provide to someone like me.

Please consider this, but only after all those evil gas stoves are in landfills.

Hello Dan -

Just had a quick exchange with Austin who says you'd "be perfect" for this query with the WSJ. Do you have a few minutes in the next 30 or so for a chat off-the-record with a reporter to explain the process involved in banning products?

Let me know and please copy Patty, as I need to leave the house by 3:00 for a doctor's appointment.

I haven't gone back to the reporter, but I do know that he's got a pretty tight deadline and may need to speak with someone pretty quickly (within the next 30 minutes?). Are you or someone on your team available for a quick chat to explain how things work over here?

A reporter from Bloomberg called in late December asking for reaction to a Commissioner's remarks re: CPSC banning gas stoves. I made it clear to him at that time that the Commission had made no announcements on regulating gas stoves, but that we would be soliciting comments from the public per our FY23 OpPlan. At his request, we also put him in touch with Commissioner Trumka's office.

| The resulting article is generating quite a lot of interest since is suggests that a ban is imminent and that                              |

Got a few follow up questions from a reporter I spoke with earlier today re: gas stoves. Hoping you can help with these two questions:

- Can you clarify if lawn darts were the last product banned by the commission?
- Is it also correct that bans and regulations apply only to new products?

Thanks very much.

My name is (b)(6) and I'm writing in regards to the latest banning of wood stoves and gas stoves Wich I feel is wrong on all accounts people depending on them for survival is a must. The banning is a communist move to control by the ccp . Reconsider the harm you will bring to many who depends on the very survival of these stoves . To make even this move is highly not recommended as we both know this is wrong. I hope you have reconsider and decide not to Bann stoves . I got one would not recognize or follow such ban as I depend on these for survival please reconsider your dessions and vote no on the China control ccp move thank you (b)(6)

Hello Dan -

Just had a quick exchange with Austin who says you'd "be perfect" for this query with the WSJ. Do you have a few minutes in the next 30 or so for a chat off-the-record with a reporter to explain the process involved in banning products?

Let me know and please copy Patty, as I need to leave the house by 3:00 for a doctor's appointment.

I haven't gone back to the reporter, but I do know that he's got a pretty tight deadline and may need to speak with someone pretty quickly (within the next 30 minutes?). Are you or someone on your team available for a quick chat to explain how things work over here?

| A reporter from Bloomberg called in late December asking for reaction to a Commissioner's remarks re: CPSC banning gas stoves. I made it clear to him at that time that the Commission had made no announcements on regulating gas stoves, but that we would be soliciting comments from the public per our FY23 OpPlan. At his request, we also put him in touch with Commissioner Trumka's office. |  |  |
| The resulting article is generating quite a lot of interest since is suggests that a ban is imminent and that a Commissioner's comments reflect the intention of the Commission. $(b)(5)$                                                                                                                                                                                                            |  |  |

The reporter is free at 2:30 for a quick off-the-record chat. I'll send a Webex invitation. In the meantime, here's the article that's driving all these queries – so you know what you're responding to:

Hello Dan -

Just had a quick exchange with Austin who says you'd "be perfect" for this query with the WSJ. Do you have a few minutes in the next 30 or so for a chat off-the-record with a reporter to explain the process involved in banning products?

Let me know and please copy Patty, as I need to leave the house by 3:00 for a doctor's appointment.

Are you or someone on your team available for a quick chat to explain how things work over here?                                                                                                                                      |

| A reporter from Bloomberg called in late December asking for reaction to a Commissioner's remarks re: CPSC banning gas stoves. I made it clear to him at that time that the Commission had made no announcements on regulating gas stoves, but that we would be soliciting comments from the public per our FY23 OpPlan. At his request, we also put him in touch with Commissioner Trumka's office.            |
| The resulting article is generating quite a lot of interest since is suggests that a ban is imminent and that                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

Got a few follow up questions from a reporter I spoke with earlier today re: gas stoves. Hoping you can help with these two questions:

- Can you clarify if lawn darts were the last product banned by the commission?
- Is it also correct that bans and regulations apply only to new products?

Thanks very much.

Thanks for this, Pamela. Can you clarify if lawn darts were the last product banned by the commission? Is it also correct that bans and regulations apply only to new products? Does the commission have the authority to require consumers to remove products from their homes?

Got a few follow up questions from a reporter I spoke with earlier today re: gas stoves. Hoping you can help with these two questions:

- Can you clarify if lawn darts were the last product banned by the commission?
- Is it also correct that bans and regulations apply only to new products?

Thanks very much.

Thanks for this, Pamela. Can you clarify if lawn darts were the last product banned by the commission? Is it also correct that bans and regulations apply only to new products? Does the commission have the authority to require consumers to remove products from their homes?

Subject: FW: PolitiFact reporter fact-checking claims about CPSC and gas ovens

Got a few follow up questions from a reporter I spoke with earlier today re: gas stoves. Hoping you can help with these two questions:

- Can you clarify if lawn darts were the last product banned by the commission?
- Is it also correct that bans and regulations apply only to new products?

Thanks very much.

Thanks for this, Pamela. Can you clarify if lawn darts were the last product banned by the commission? Is it also correct that bans and regulations apply only to new products? Does the commission have the authority to require consumers to remove products from their homes?

Subject: RE: Proposed statement on gas stoves -- Thanks everyone

OK everyone is good with it. I am sending it to the Wall Street Journal reporter now. Thank you.

CPSC has not proposed any regulatory action on gas stoves at this time. Any regulatory action by the Commission would involve a lengthy process. Agency staff plans to start gathering data and perspectives from the public on potential hazards associated with gas stoves, and proposed solutions to those hazards later this year. Commission staff also continues to work with voluntary standards organizations to examine gas stove emissions and address potential hazards.
