SUMMARY OF MEETING:

The meeting was requested by The Chemical Specialty Manufacturers Association (CSMA) to discuss aspects of the comments they intend to submit in response to the Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (ANPR) for household products containing petroleum distillates or other hydrocarbons.

The representatives from CSMA discussed four points. First, they believe that the rule should be limited to petroleum distillates. Second, they indicated that the level should be maintained at 10% with a viscosity of 100 SUS at 100°F. The third point was that aerosol products should be eliminated from the rule because of lack of information to include them. The final point was that the CSMA would like to work with the CPSC on an educational campaign. They indicated that the scenarios in some of the incident reports would not have been prevented by child-resistant packaging.

The staff indicated that the definition of what should be included in the rule was the most difficult problem. The term petroleum distillate was too specific and the term hydrocarbon was too general. The CSMA offered to work with the staff to develop a definition.

The CPSC staff indicated that CSMA's comments and all others would be considered and addressed by the staff.
